The paintings are all announced as copies, but one roped-off area shows you eÅÅAFridaeÅÅAs wheelchairsÅÅA and eÅÅAFridaeÅÅAs corsetsÅÅA. The real ones or replicas? I couldn'eÅÅÅt tell you: the show doesneÅÅÅt. Nor could I find any info about the Rivera time-lapse sequence. It was Googling at home that led me to Detroit. What justifies the ticket price eÅÅA ÅÅA19.90 for adults eÅÅA is The Gallery, a dark, hanger-like space where a kaleidoscopic collage of Kahlo and RiveraeÅÅÅs works is projected onto the floor and four walls. After copies and repros, this felt truly exciting: a work of art in its own right. Four stars for The Gallery, two stars for everything else.Å Å If you saw the equivalent Van Gogh room eÅÅÅÅ Å squarely first-generation eÅÅÅ then this is another level. It'eÅÅÅs somewhere between pinboard, scrapbook and the Waltz of the Flowers. Kahlo and RiveraeÅÅÅs paintings are cut up, animated and set in stop-motion. A cascade of hallucinatory cacti falls from the skies. RiveraeÅÅÅs figures come to life, their joints seemingly hinged with old-fashioned butterfly pins. At times I was reminded of The Magic Roundabout or the animation of Oliver Postgate. You'eÅÅÅÅll want to linger. Please, organisers, get in more beanbags. The Van Gogh room was carpeted, this one is concrete and it'eÅÅÅÅs cold. Bring a cushion, just in case. I watched a toddler potter across the patterned floor in raptures. Toddlers aside, who is this for? You might say that it gets a younger crowd into art, but I went to Frida Kahlo: Making Herself Up at the V&A in 2018 and there wasneÅÅÅÅt room to swing a chihuahua. Throngs of Gen Z and millennial women looking at KahloeÅÅÅs real portraits, costumes, lipsticks and painted plaster corsets. The best exhibitions reach out without gimmicks. Hold on to your purse.
